

20,000 Americans In Morocco Face New Restrictions

RABAT, French Morocco, Sept. 9 (UPI)—American authorities slapped on new restrictions today designed to keep some 20,000 Americans out of scrapes if Nationalist violence starts again.

Most Americans in this troubled French protectorate are connected with five big air bases. Some restrictions were lifted a week ago, but they were imposed again today, at least for the Rabat area.

Maj. Gen. Frederick F. Gantzberg, commanding the 17th Air Force, apologized for them.

"These periodical on-again-off-again restrictions and inconveniences," he told wives and children in a special statement, "have been trying for all of us. Many times precautionary restrictions have been imposed and nothing at all happens."

Although his command does not quite cover all U.S. installations, it was believed that similar restrictions were being put on elsewhere. This is in event of trouble next week following the Monday deadline French Premier Edgar Faure set for himself on a start toward home rule in Morocco.

There seemed little indication here that the date could be met. Yesterday a terrorist threw a grenade into a police truck at Casablanca, wounding 5 policemen and a nurse. Police fired into a fleeing crowd, killing at least 6 Moroccans and wounding 15.

Under the new restrictions men living on the base, largely bachelors, are restricted to it except for officially sponsored beach parties.

All Americans were told to keep to a few main roads along the Atlantic Coast and not to drive at all at night except on duty, and to stay out of all French bars, theaters, restaurants and public transport. They were particularly warned to stay away from Moroccan districts.

OOPS!

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—UP—Truck Driver Norbert Niedziela, 24, walked to two men on the street Friday and flashed a badge.

He said he was a private detective investigating gambling and vice.

The two men flashed badges, too. They were police plain-clothesmen. At the station Niedziela admitted he got his badge from a mail order house for $5.

Douglas Suggests Direct Small Farmer Subsidy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UPI)—Sen. Douglas (D-III) tentatively suggested today that a direct subsidy of up to $2,000 a year for small and marginal farmers might solve the problem of declining farm prices and farm income.

The Midwestern Democrat told a news conference that President Eisenhower and his administration had reversed campaign promises about maintaining prices and income for farmers.

"This is not merely failure to carry out a pledge but actual violation of a pledge," Douglas said.

He said his idea of a new subsidy plan was "a trial balloon" that some opponents might call "a Brannan plan because they don't like it."

He was referring to a proposal by former President Truman's secretary of agriculture, Charles F. Brannan, which was rejected by Congress. The Brannan plan involved a system of subsidies designed to maintain farm prosperity and hold down consumer prices.

Douglas said a direct subsidy plan, limited to the first $7,000 of annual gross farm income, might preserve small farmers and still allow wide-open competition in market prices without government controls or price supports. He said this might cost from $700 million to two billion dollars a year.

In answer to questions, he said a direct subsidy might not operate successfully for dairy producers or farmers growing perishable crops.

In addition to farmers, Douglas said there are "large areas where people are in trouble." He said these are in coal mines of Illinois, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania and textile centers of New England.

Douglas said that both farm prices and income had continued to slide downward while the stock market boomed.

Asked what this would mean in next year's election of a president and Congress, Douglas said:

"Unless things improve the Republican party will be brought to a just accounting."

"The American people will strike a balance sheet between the bill of goods sold them in 1952 and actual conditions at the time of the election."

Yugoslavia Might Seek Greek-Turk Settlement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 9 (UPI)—Yugoslavia hinted today it might seize the initiative and try to settle the bitter dispute between Greece and Turkey which threatens to weaken the Balkan Alliance.

Branko Draskovic, chief of the information section of the Foreign "Yugoslavia has always advocated mutually agreed settlements of all problems among the interested parties. It is to be regretted that such a settlement has not yet been found."

Draskovic was asked also whether Yugoslavia believed the Greek-Turkish quarrel would weaken the three-nation alliance.

"We believe that by joint efforts such an unfavorable development will be avoided," he replied.

Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia signed a 20-year military alliance in Bled, Yugoslavia, just 13 months ago today. It implemented a friendship treaty the three nations signed in 1953. Greece and Turkey are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, while Yugoslavia is not. The pact binds Yugoslavia to stand with the Greeks and Turks against any threat from the Soviet Union or her satellites.

But Yugoslavia agreed also to join with Greece and Turkey in determining what action should be taken if any NATO nation is attacked, thus providing an indirect link between Yugoslavia and NATO.

The senator said, "We must be adequately prepared but we must also guard against the profligate dissipation of our financial and physical resources."

"We can no longer afford the luxury of the accordian-like defense policy which has characterized our nation in the past."

Bridges is the senior Senate Republican in point of service. He heads the GOP Senate Policy Committee and is influential on the Appropriations Committee, which handles all money bills.

He told the chamber his party had written a record of economy in government in the last half century, while Democratic administrations had done just the opposite. The New Hampshire senator said the Eisenhower administration had succeeded in reducing appropriations from $91,400,000,000 in the last full year of the Truman administration to $5 billion dollars in the fiscal year ending last June 30.

Bridges said it is apparent that government today is looked upon and generally accepted as the stabilizer of our economy."

"In accordance with this approach," he went on, "there are many who feel that considerations of stabilizing the economy override considerations of budget balancing. "My personal view is that stability can be accomplished without budgetary imbalance. . . ."

14 New Members Initiated By Club

Fourteen new members were initiated into the Monroe Optimist Club last night during a visitation banquet program at which two high officials were present.

Guest speaker at the occasion was Dr. Omos O. Shaw, Benton, Texas, governor of district seven, while lieutenant governor Shannon Willoughby of zone E, district seven, presided over initiation ceremonies. Willoughby is from Shreveport.

Also in attendance at the meeting with Optimists were their wives, who are members of the Opti-Mrs. Club. Merlin Mistead is president of the Optimist Club here, while president of the Opti-Mrs. Club is Dorothy Eppinette.

Louis Stern, immediate past secretary-treasurer of the local club said last night that the group here is chartering a new Optimist Club at Bastrop. The first chartering meeting was held recently, he said, and a second session is set for Friday noon in Bastrop at the Louisiana Hotel.

The Optimist organization has the motto, "Friend of the Boy." The Monroe club is sponsor of the Babe Ruth League here.

Negro Delegates Approve Handling Of Slaying Case

MEMPHIS, Sept. 9 (UPI)—Some 15,000 delegates to a Negro religious convention today roared approval of a resolution commanding Mississippi law officers for their handling of the Emmett Till case.

The resolution was presented by Dr. J. H. Jackson of Chicago, president of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A., Inc., representing churches with a total of four million members.

Dr. Jackson also read a message from President Eisenhower which said "this is a time when the world is in need of prayer" and urged the convention to "pray for the peace of the world."

Till, a 14-year-old Negro boy from Chicago, was visiting relatives near Money, Miss., when he wolf-whistled at a pretty white woman. Two men took him from his uncle's home Aug. 28. His battered body was found in a river three days later.

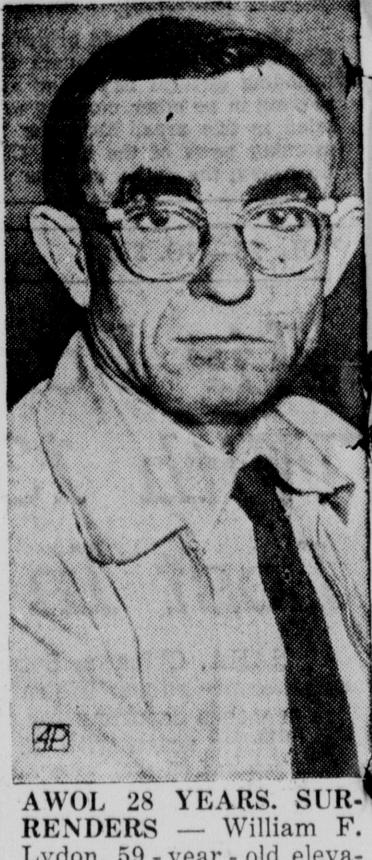

The resolution called the slaying "one of the most infamous, diabolical and fiendish crimes in the annals of human history."

Two white men were charged with kidnapping and murder. They await trial at Sumner, Miss. The resolution said:

"We command the law enforcement officers of Mississippi for what they have done thus far and pray that they will continue until their task has been accomplished."

The meeting ends Sunday. The 1956 convention will be in Denver.

Don't Scare Girl-Shy Boy—Friendliness Does The Trick

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm very interested in a boy who is friendly to me but that's all. He suffered a disappointment in a previous friendship so I think he might be wary of girls in general. How can I make him conscious of me as a person? Vivian ANSWER: Be available when he wants company. Don't play hard-to-get. Try the warm, friendly angle. A boy whose ego has been hurt isn't looking for more of the same.

DEAR MISS DIX: Seven years ago I married a man with 10 children, the youngest one 6. We have been a happy family. The older youngsters have married and gone into their own homes, leaving two teen-agers here. Folks say I've done a good job, but I must admit to a hankering for the day when they'll be all on their own and my husband and I could have some time to ourselves. It seems that day is never coming.

A few months ago his oldest daughter died, leaving three girls 6, 7 and 9. Their father is quite indifferent to their welfare. Occasionally he contributes a little money and has called on them three times for a short visit. Otherwise, to all intents and purposes they are ours to raise. I love them dearly, but the prospect of years of more child-raising is hard to face.

Mrs. W.

ANSWER: You give no hint of your age, which would have considerable bearing on the case, theoretically at least. If you are too old to handle the girls, they would undoubtedly be better with some one of the middle generation. Those sons and daughters, however, are undoubtedly busy with their own broods.

It is hard to have so great a responsibility put upon one, but you strike me as being the sort of person whose conscience would balk at a duty shirked. God in his wisdom has entrusted these little ones to you, and I'm sure their love will be your reward. Get as much help as you can from the older ones now at home, so you won't be completely tied down.

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister and I have two boy friends apiece. Each thinks he's the only one. They live quite a distance apart and so far we've managed quite well. Now they are all coming here on the same week-end so — what to do?

Beth

SHARE THE WEALTH

ANSWER: There should be a government injunction against you for monopoly and unfair competition. Why not spread the largesse around, share it with less lucky femmes? There's certainly no use trying to preserve secrecy, so let everybody in on the fun.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a nice family, a sweet and understanding husband and two lovely children. I wouldn't want anything to spoil my happiness. But my husband's brother was recently divorced and is living with us. I feel he is showing too much interest in me; I don't like the way he looks at me. If I say anything to my husband I'm sure he'll say it's my imagination.

V.L.

ANSWER: I gather your brother-in-law is around while your husband is at work. A situation like this can easily cause gossip. Tell your husband so. Add that you are uncomfortable with your brother-in-law around and would prefer to have him leave. There's certainly no reason for him to park with you.

Negroes Urged To 'Go Slow' In Equality Quest

MEMPHIS (AP)—The president of the National Baptist Convention U. S. A., Inc., has urged Negroes to go softly in their quest for equality.

Speaking before 7,000 delegates last night, Dr. J. H. Jackson of Chicago said Negroes should not come "to believe that the day for good will among the races has passed."

Making his annual report to the 75th annual convention, Dr. Jackson told the crowd, "Let us not put confidence in organized capital or organized protest in an effort to build better human relations."

"Let us not become bitter as we face the hard struggle of practical application of the (Supreme Court's school segregation) decision. In our haste to achieve the goals we desire, let us always remember the creative value of good will."

Jackson said Mississippi law enforcement officers should be commended for their handling of the Emmett Till case. He said he plans to present a "mild" resolution on the case before the convention ends Sunday.

Till, 14, a Chicago Negro boy visiting an uncle near Money, Miss., was taken from the house by two white men after wolf-whistling at a pretty white woman. His battered body was found in a river.

Two white men, Roy Bryant, 24, of Money, and his half-brother, J. W. Milam, 36, of Glendora, were charged with kidnapping and murder. They await trial at Sumner, Miss.

Why The Allies Yielded Berlin

The most tragic single mistake of World War II on the part of the Western Allies, from a purely military standpoint, was their failure to push eastward into Germany in the closing days of the European conflict and capture Berlin.

This failure cannot be blamed on the military, led by then General Dwight D. Eisenhower. It must be blamed on political sources.

Some of Ike's critics have insisted that he, as commander of the allied forces sweeping through Europe, was to blame.

This criticism is obviously unfair and it presumes that in instances where his judgement as a military man was at stake, he should have ignored orders from his civilian superiors in Washington and swept ahead regardless—as the impetuous and brilliant field commander, Gen. Patton, was reported without official verification to have favored and urged.

Ike's position then was commander of the Allied Forces in Europe. Although he sat in on numerous discussions involving high policy, he was not a policy maker. He was a consultant and adviser, and beyond that his role extended only to his main duties—carrying out orders as a military man. There are important instances where his advice on policy was disregarded by President Franklin D. Roosevelt serving as commander in chief of the American armed forces.

Yet the paralysis that struck the Allied armies in their victorious push eastward toward the great coveted bastion and metropolitan center of Berlin is a matter of record. The Allied armies were forced to loaf and fish.

It was not a military paralysis. American and British and French and other soldiers and their commanders fretted and fumed. Here was a halt to a triumphant sweep that apparently was politically ordered, from sources higher than the military. Who ordered it, and why?

White House and State Department records which would have shed decisive light upon this tragedy apparently have been doctored, stolen and destroyed; and State Department white papers issued during the Truman administration shed a sticky whitewash upon the tragic episode—which in its results ultimately may decide the fate of Europe and Western civilization.

Sir Winston Churchill in his celebrated war memoirs and public addresses has hinted strongly that the decision not to capture Berlin was dictated at a high American level. Speaking at Hastings, England, a few days ago, he lamented the fact that the Russians were allowed to occupy Berlin ahead of Allied forces; and added that he clearly foresaw the danger but could not get the support of "those directing American policies."

At Churchill's level, the only stumbling-block was Roosevelt.

The former prime minister pointed out that American strength was in large part responsible for Allied victories in Western Europe, but added:

"But nevertheless we had a very strong contingent, a very strong and powerful contingent. I think I shall not be wrong in saying that if our American friends had listened to appeals which I made and others, and had endeavored to sustain the left wing of the great army that moved into Germany, it is probable that we should have taken Berlin and should have, at any rate, gained a great footing in the whole of the conquered territory."

"The advantages that (the capture of Berlin) would have brought to our country were not apparent at the time to everyone. But there is no doubt that (Field Marshal) Lord Montgomery was allowed to take the course that he advocated, and which I sustained to the best of my ability, we should have been in a position—I will put it delicately—to deal with the position when we met our friends (the Russians) who were coming from the other side, better than we have been able to do now."

Here, in diplomatic but pointed language, the last survivor of the World War II "Big Four" reveals that America was to blame for the Russian seizure of Berlin, over his protests and the protests of his brilliant general, field marshal Lord Montgomery.

Who was responsible for this sellout to Russia?

The American people are entitled to know the true facts.

White Cracks Down On Gambling

The plush gulf Mississippi Strip or gold coast felt the axes and torches of National Guardsmen Wednesday night, under orders from Gov. Hugh White to break up gambling.

The governor, soon to retire from office, has many fine accomplishments to his credit; but control of the "strip" is not one of them.

He and the entire machinery of state government, which he heads, have shown peculiar indecision and vacillation in meeting this issue.

It has been "off again, on again Finnegan," with brusque temporary gestures by state authorities, followed by long periods when the night clubs along the beautiful seashore at and near Gulfport ran wide open.

Mississippi has rigorous state laws against gambling and the sale of hard liquor, and has been thoroughly hypocritical in enforcing them. The consumption of hard liquor in Mississippi is among the highest per capita in the nation. In various counties, local officials undoubtedly are raking in graft in return for "protection" of the night spots.

The buildup for another Phenix City might be there, except for the absence of a vast reservoir of servicemen, who of all persons, and by reason of their status in the military, are the most readily exploited. The buildup for gangsterism undoubtedly is there.

The fault does not lie entirely with Gov. White and his administration. It lies, in essence with the people of Mississippi, who are divided sharply along sectional and geographical lines. If they want casinos and games of chance, and night clubs serving all sorts of drinks, they should legalize these. But in the interior, there is sentiment against such devices; while on the gold coast, with its dependence upon tourist trade, the sentiment is for "running wide open."

Mississippi should alter its laws to meet gold coast wishes, or enforce them without fear or favor.

If its laws were enforced, without fear or favor, Mississippians would feel a thirst the like of which was never felt before in America, considering the statistics on its consumption of bootleg hard liquors.

Social Security Is A Swindle

Our society is becoming so overorganized that more and more people are becoming holes in IBM cards. What happens to the man who does not fit a hole, let us say, a man who earns 67 cents more than the Social Security rule permits? Well, he either arranges not to get the 67 cents, or he gets it from an honest employer in cash and never reports it, or he is in trouble as his benefits might be confiscated by a zealous bureaucrat.

The smartest way to beat the holes in the IBM machines is to refuse to be paid by check, and to insist that any money or hand was left over from last year, because even crap game winnings should be reported.

This thing called Social Security is a swindle because the recipient does not get enough to keep him, nor is he permitted to earn enough to do well. The only honest way to administer such a system is to pay out to everyone the same amount no matter how much money he has or how much he earns.

I often wonder why fine, strong, capable young men, some of them college graduates, accept jobs as policemen or firemen when they could make more money at pleasanter work like being a salesman or a truckdriver. After all, it requires no tremendous ability for a man to direct traffic or steer the wheel of a fire engine. And some of these fellows seem to be very intelligent.

A friend of mine who is well-read and an excellent conversationalist is a traffic cop, which I thought was wasting real talent. It turned out, however, that he had calculated carefully. Sometime in his early 40s, he will have a sufficient pension to take care of himself and whatever family he then has, and at that time he will go into business or open a private detective agency or become an anti-communist screener for corporations or join the Fund for the Republic.

The fact that he gets a pension does not prevent him from earning whatever he can. That is different from the Social Security set-up which places limitations upon the recipient's earning. In a word, Social Security is not a human

So Senator Langer's committee wants to know if any of these young folks are being led astray by the printed filth that has become so readily available.

And the committee is sending a bundle of the stuff to the Lions Club in Bismarck, N. D., for "analysis."

Club President J. S. Fevold says the Lions' board of directors has voted to look over the thousand pictures which have been collected and pass along their members' best judgment in the matter.

The Lions Club of Bismarck, N. D., will go over the evidence and report on whether such printed matter is sinful, whether it stimulates criminal passions, so forth.

The post office, which is required by law to ban the movement of such material through the United States mails . . . will look the other way.

"Sometimes you have to break laws to make them," is the explanation for the fact that the postal authorities will close their eyes to this shipment.

Understand, I am not objecting to inquiry or to the manner in which the material is being "farmed out" for critical analysis.

Indeed, if the distinguished sociologists and psychologists who have appeared before the committee are in doubt about what constitutes morally corruptive influences . . .

If the committee is not certain what is filthy and what is not, then by all means it is right and proper that they should submit their samples to folks out in the grass roots

Parental Hopes

What do parents expect from the school education of their child? Whatever that is, it will have a great deal to do with the child's school life. If the parents set too high a standard for the child's school life. If the parents set too high a standard for the child's ability, or if they set a low one, they will be unhappy with the results. The health, ability and the quality of his intelligence must be the measure of his success and a wise father and mother study the child with that in mind.

When a child of average intelligence and ability is asked to stand at the top of his class, he is likely to be more of a failure than he was asked simply to do his best. "Just do your best and Dad and I will be happy" is far more likely to place a child high in his class than if he were told, "Don't bring us anything but an A."

One thing is certain: the child who is properly trained and sent to school is the child who will be graduated. His high points will be developed, his strengths increased, his poorer qualities will be lessened but, in general, he will be the child that entered school the first day.

By that we mean if he is keen for study, he will remain so and with added zest. If he dislikes books, wearies of study too soon, he will be graduated as one who is not fond of booklearning but his liking for handling material things will have been developed and he will be set toward some field of endeavor that will allow him to be a happy, useful citizen.

Character is the dominating influence in achievement. When a child goes to school in the firm conviction that he is a good child, that he has all the power necessary to do what he needs to do, that by being willing, friendly and honest, he will succeed, be approved and loved, he will fulfill the hopes of his parents.

A child trained in this spirit is set to learn and to grow in grace and power. Freed from pressure, given time and space in which to find his way, he will discover his strengths and develop happily. Without this training, driven beyond his ability or neglected so that he is disheartened before he starts, he will not be likely to do much toward fulfilling either the hopes of his parents or the plans of his teachers.

When parents set a reasonable standard of achievement for their children, train and teach them with patient affection so that they become conscious of their need for school education, they will find that his proposals will probably unbalance it again in the ensuing year.

Next year the White House hopes to put through its big "forward looking" program, which the President has hoped would make such an impression on the country that any sound Republican could be elected in his place. The program will go through with some curtailments, and will include federal aid for schools, health insurance and highways, but the GOP doubts that it will find the country so appreciative that another Republican nominee would enjoy the same advantage as a candidate which Eisenhower now appears to have.

A quick survey shows that while defense expenditures are tapering off, chiefly at the insistence of the President and Secretary Humphrey, the predicted time has arrived when non-defense expenditures are going up, despite congressional limits on the federal debt and the prospect of new budget deficits.

The child parents send to school is, essentially, the child who will be graduated. The school can build no higher than the standard the parents set in the child. The home standard always dominates.

RIPLEY'S—Believe It Or Not!

Worry Clinic

By Dr. George W. Crane

What are Margery's chances of happiness if she goes through with her present wedding plans? We psychologists would say she has no better than one chance in three. Use the tests below to help pick wisely, for you cast the proxy votes for your future unborn children. Be sure you give them the best possible parent.

Case P-336: Margery L., aged 26, is engaged to be married.

"Dr. Crane, they had a shower for me last week, and my wedding day is three weeks from this Saturday," Margery began.

"But my mother and married sisters are opposing the wedding. They tell me I am almost sure to be unhappy."

"For my fiance and I come from diametrically opposed religions. Neither will give an inch."

"And he is from an immigrant family which still uses that foreign language at home."

"However, he has broken away and become educated till he now has an engineering degree. And he seems fairly independent of his family, though he insists I join their church at the dictate of his family."

"Dr. Crane, I always felt that personal differences would grow less after the wedding. Am I right or wrong?"

Many girls past 25 grow panicky and decide to follow the old adage that a half a loaf is better than none.

This means they are scared lest they will become old maids, so they are more willing to gamble against the known odds.

Don't make the mistake of thinking you can never be happy as a single girl, or that perfect bliss inevitably follows the receipt of your wedding ring.

That's not always true. Many single girls are far happier than browbeaten married women.

"Margery, I'll give you just one chance in three of marital happiness," I told her.

We psychologists admit that personal differences between the ego of bride and groom, tend to level off as time passes.

Husband and wife should thus become more tolerant and more understanding of each other with each month that passes, if they work hard at the job of making a success of their marriage.

But deeply entrenched religious and racial differences often loom larger as time passes.

For when children arrive, then feuding may start afresh over which church should be chosen for the religious education of the youngsters.

And racial or color lines are often accentuated when children arrive on the scene.

"Margery, most marriages start out with only one strike against them," I concluded, "and that is the personality clash between the young husband and wife."

"Most marriages weather that storm, although 20 to 25 per cent do not."

These figures demonstrate the difficulty of budget cuts in the future. When the president adds a new program, the budget totals almost certainly will be on the rise again.

For the present Secretary Humphrey, generally regarded as the most able member of the Eisenhower cabinet has done a good job. But sooner or later, he must have some sort of understanding with the heavy spender across the street in the White House.

Shrine Welcomed To Mississippi By Lt. Governor

BILOXI, Miss., Sept. 9 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin lauded Shriners today "because along with the fun and the tomfoolery of the Shriners is the spirit of doing something for the people around us."

Gartin welcomed delegates from nine states to the Southeastern Shrine Assn. meeting. An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 fun - bent Shriners jammed hotels and motels from Ocean Springs to Bay St. Louis for the three-day event.

The Lieutenant Governor referred to the shriners support of 17 hospitals for crippled children throughout the country.

"We are glad to have you come to Mississippi," Gartin said.

As he concluded a shriner dressed as a tramp, led a small skunk on a leash up the aisle of the convention room. Another Shriner mounted on a large black horse followed.

With much of their business completed, delegates began dropping bombs in the still of night, and followed with sirens, weird horns and noisemakers.

In a quickening tempo of horseplay and gags, they took over the town. They held dances in the streets, tied up traffic with trick automobiles, and generally drove citizens into frenzy with tricks and funmaking.

Mayor Laz Quave of Biloxi told the Shriners today "The city is yours. Just don't take it with you when you leave."

Others welcoming the shriners included Mayor R. B. Meadow of Gulfport; Tom Q. Ellis, general grand high priest of the general grand chapter, of the world; Paul A. Jones, potestate of Oasis Temple, Charlotte, N. C.; and George A. Matteson Jr., Imperial Oriental Guide.

Marvin Mostellar, potestate of Abba Temple, Mobile, Ala., expressed regret at the death of Leslie E. Buerger of Abba Temple, who was in line for the presidency of the Southeastern association.

Charles E. Sampson, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Mississippi, said masonry "has meant more to our country than any other organization except our churches."

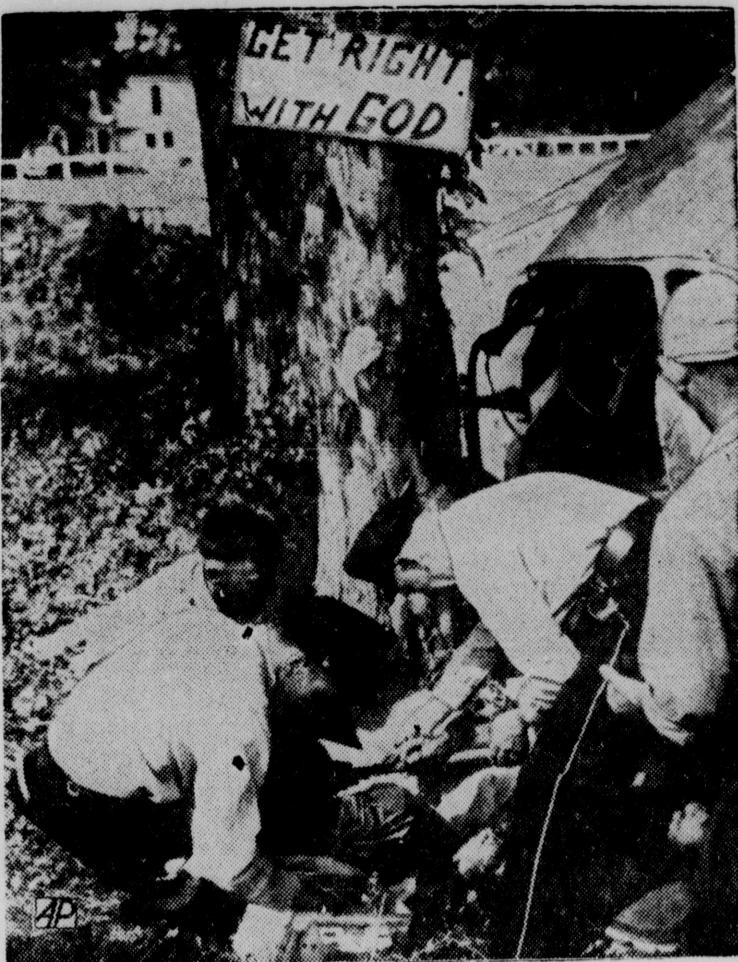

Masonry is the oldest fraternal organization in the country, he said and now has six million members.

The Shrine convention ends tomorrow, climaxed by a parade along the beach front.

Military Security Never Better Off, Radford Says

DENVER, Sept. 9 (AP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford declared after conferring with President Eisenhower today that U.S. military security "was never better off"—and that no basic change in defense spending is planned this fiscal year.

Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, made the statement on the national security picture in commenting on former President Truman's assertion that, "The cuts in our ground forces are unjustified and most dangerous at this time."

In a Chicago speech, Truman said the Eisenhower regime has seen fit to cut the military establishment below the goals which the Truman administration fixed, "but it still represents very great military strength."

Radford stressed that he had not read Truman's remarks about "unjustified and most dangerous" cuts, but the admiral commented:

"I would say that I don't know of any such actions, and I think I would know about them." Then Radford declared:

"I think we have basically a very sound military program. From the standpoint of security, the country was never better off."

Commenting later in Chicago on Radford's remarks, Truman said the admiral "would know about it if he read the newspapers." The former President added:

"I'm glad he says there aren't any cuts. Some of the cuts are already made. The bad ones are contemplated."

Radford conferred with Eisenhower at the Denver White House on national security problems and said the discussion included military spending.

What the admiral later told newsmen about that situation caused some confusion because he said "there will be no changes in the basic military program" during the fiscal year which started July 1, and then added that the program calls for $37,500,000 in defense spending.

The figure may have been a slip of the tongue and the admiral may have intended to use the figure $35,750,000, which was the amount for military spending in the Eisenhower administration's January budget.

Radford said the Pentagon is continuously striving for economy and predicted there will be some savings.

He said all military money available seldom actually is spent, but he added that he looks for the total to be "over $34 billion dollars."

Just how much over, he declared, "I don't think anybody can tell."

Radford said he had seen published reports that the Pentagon

Bishops Take Steps To Erase Church Discord

HONOLULU, Sept. 9 (AP)—Two bishops at the Protestant Episcopal convention took steps yesterday to erase what a spokesman said today was "an unfortunate misunderstanding" with the Roman Catholic Church.

The convention passed its half-way point with all major decisions still to be reached after these developments:

1. The Rt. Rev. Egmont M. Kirschke, bishop of the missionary district of Southwestern Brazil, toned down last night, shortly before delivery, a speech critical of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America.

2. The Rt. Rev. Harry S. Kennedy, Episcopal bishop of Honolulu, said in a statement that relations between the two churches were cordial in Hawaii and that speeches before the convention did not necessarily reflect the attitude of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop Kennedy spoke up after the Most Rev. John J. Scanlan, Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop of Honolulu, issued a statement in reply to an earlier convention speech which criticized the Roman Catholic Church.

Bishop Kirschke had prepared a speech for a foreign mission meeting saying "the Roman church exploits their (Latin Americans) illiteracy and credulity in a most sordid way."

Three hours before its scheduled delivery, all references to the Roman Catholic Church were deleted from the speech.

Douglas A. Bushy, the church's public relations director, said Bishop Kennedy's statement was issued and the speech was revised because of an "unfortunate choice of words which gave a false impression."

Bushy called it "an unfortunate misunderstanding."

Bishop Kirschke's speech was changed to read: "All Latin-American nations have the great majority of their people scattered over immense rural areas where illiteracy and credulity have been exploited in an appalling way."

A passage saying "Latin peoples have been nurtured in an extremely debased form of Christianity" was changed to: "Latin people are religiously undernourished."

In a speech before the convention Tuesday, the Rt. Rev. Louis C. McLecher, bishop of the missionary district of Central Brazil, had referred to the Roman Catholic Church as "a religion of exploitation and superstition."

In reply, Bishop Scanlan said that, "It ill becomes him to classify under the heading of superstition and exploitation the beliefs and practices of that church which lifted the world out of slavery and immorality and which today is recognized as the chief spiritual bulwark against atheistic communism."

The convention today was to turn its attention to a proposal to change the name of the church from Protestant Episcopal to Episcopal, an issue which in the past has brought on much debate.

The bids of Miami, Fla., and New York City for the 1958 convention also may reach the floor late in the day.

Ex-Rodeo Cowboy Is Charged With Cattle Rustling

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 9 (AP)—Huron C. Darby, 30-year-old former rodeo cowboy from Texas, was in Hamilton County jail today on a charge of cattle rustling, Sheriff Rex Richey reported.

Darby, a Beaumont, Tex., native who has lived more recently in Chattanooga and Lawrenceburg, Tenn., was arrested at his Lawrenceburg home late Thursday night by Lawrence County Officers.

Sheriff Richey said he asked that the man be arrested after investigation of a report that "a suspicious" automobile and trailer, with a Texas license, were seen at the Chattanooga union stockyards. He said he contacted a Beaumont officer who gathered information that led Hamilton County officers to Lawrenceburg.

Darby is charged with stealing a cow last month from Alex Sholtz and taking a steer from the farm of Abner Moon, both in Hamilton County. He faces a preliminary hearing in sessions court here Monday.

The sheriff said Darby told him he had stolen at least nine other cows in Tennessee in recent months and in doing it "I wore out nine car tires and two trailer tires," crisscrossing Tennessee. Richey said Darby told him it was his method to take a cow in one part of the state and sell it in another.

The officer added that Darby told him he "used to steal chickens" but "switched to cows because there is not enough money in hens."

The sheriff said Darby, married and the father of two children, was convicted on an arson charge when he was a teenager and also had spent time in a penitentiary on a charge of stealing chickens.

Benson Says U. S. Cannot Continue To Let Other Nations Snatch Markets

ROME, Sept. 9 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said Friday that the United States cannot continue to let other nations snatch world markets while it holds farm surpluses in storage.

"We are not afraid of talking facts—frankly and even bluntly," he said.

He reminded the delegates from 37 nations here to discuss food and fiber problems, that much of the U.S. surplus farm problem is due to its efforts to meet wrong needs in World War II and later.

"I believe it is a literal truth that millions of people now living on this earth would have perished—and other millions would never have been born—except for the vast program of food distribution undertaken through the years by the United States," Benson said.

"I say this humbly and gratefully."

As an example of fiber surplus, Benson pointed out that the United States has on hand 11 million bales of cotton from previous crops. He warned it is a "world surplus" and a joint responsibility of all cotton-producing nations.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 9 (AP)—Alabama milk producers called today for a reexamination of the "quota system" and price structure in the state, and charged that while they are being penalized for producing "surplus" milk imports have increased 16 per cent during the past year.

The state milk control board, which has scheduled a meeting for Sept. 14, was asked to withhold any action on quotas and prices until the producers could present their recommendations.

J. P. Henry of Hope Hull, vice chairman of the Alabama Farm Bureau dairy committee, named a committee of seven to study the problems and present the results to the whole group.

Various producers presented production and sales figures which they said showed that Alabama farmers were being paid on an average for 27 per cent "surplus" milk, which brings a lower price than the base quota they supply to distributors. At the same time, it was charged that imports have increased by 16 per cent.

One producer, F. M. Kroner of Mobile, said the "surplus" in his county ranged up to 47 per cent, but that milk was being brought into the area from as far away as Chicago. Kroner said 10 out of 140 producers in his county had gone out of business, while Johnson declared many small dairymen were "on the rocks."

John A. Garrett, Farm Bureau director of dairying, said the committee voted against appealing a recent Montgomery circuit court ruling that the milk control board cannot bring out-of-state producers under its price control jurisdiction.

He expressed the hope that a new "permit" bill passed during the closing days of the legislative session would help Alabama producers. This law, if signed by the governor, will give the commissioner of agriculture some authority over milk imports.

The producers pointed out that retail milk prices in Alabama were lower than those in Florida and Georgia, and within one cent per quart of the national average.

Garrett, reviewing the legislative session, said that distributors wanted producers to bear the cost of any further cut in prices.

However, he said, farmers have been subjected to several reductions in the last few years while the retail price has remained virtually the same.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—A dress designer said Friday Italian men have edged out Englishmen as leaders in men's fashions.

"One reason why Italian women are so stylish," she said, "is that they have to live up to their men, who are peacocks."

Bridge Collapses Under Collision Of Two Trucks

JACKSON, La., Sept. 9 (AP)—Two gravel trucks collided today on a bridge across Thompson's Creek, just west of here on State Route 10. The bridge collapsed, tumbling one truck 25 feet into the stream.

State highway department crews began building a temporary bridge alongside the 100-foot truss bridge, now crumpled into the near-dry creek bed.

State police said the drivers, M. R. Gautreaux, Natchitoches, and St. Francisville.

Charles Aymond, Simmesport, were not hurt.

While one truck fell with the bridge, the other rumbled across and ran into a ditch. The creek bed was nearly dry with only a shallow stream of water.

Highway officials said the temporary bridge would be in use within 10 days and would be used until the steel span could be replaced.

Meanwhile, traffic on state route 10 between Jackson and St. Francisville will have a detour of about 13 miles. Heading west from Jackson, they will detour south on State 68 to U.S. 61 at Lindsay, south of

Storms Pour New Rain On Texas Area; Warning Against Typhoid Is Issued

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex., Sept. 9 — UP—Thunderstorms poured nearly an inch of new rain Friday on flooded Raymondville and the Willacy county health officer warned that one case of typhoid could trigger off an epidemic in a city of 10,000 persons.

At last report, the flood had run about 700 persons out of their homes and the telephone rang every 10 minutes in the headquarters of emergency disaster headquarters with another call from a family wanting to be moved to dry ground.

More than 100 blocks were flooded and Dr. Ebony Hein, the county health officer warned that all of the flood water is contaminated. So far, however, the contamination has not penetrated into the city's drinking and cooking water supply.

"Privies are overflowing all over town and water in the whole city is contaminated. If one case of typhoid gets started, then we're really in a fix," Dr. Hein said.

Residents were being inoculated against typhoid in two buildings and Dr. Hein said he wants to make it compulsory for all school children to be vaccinated. He urged adults to come forward and get inoculated at once. The Red Cross reported nearly 500 persons were being cared for in emergency shelter. Capt. Glen Warner of the Texas Highway patrol said more than 200 others had been forced from their homes and had moved in with friends.

Capt. L. P. Wood of the National Guard explained that water was draining fast to the east, but that water from the west had overflowed into the city drainage system.

He said: "If we had no more rain I'd say it would be a minimum of two days before any water would drop substantially in the city." He said two trucks were evacuating persons Friday from areas where water stood as deep as three-and-a-half feet.

Authorities began inoculating Raymondville's residents at a school and in the Red Cross shelter area. Raymondville is a city of about 10,000 persons. Nearly all of those evacuated so far are Latin-Americans.

Warner estimated that at least 600 persons were remaining in homes where there has been some flooding.

Ed Neill of San Antonio, director of Red Cross disaster operations, said the Red Cross expected to bed down more than 500 persons Friday night.

They were registered and fed in a large central building at the Willacy county labor camp south of Raymondville, where braceros and other farmhands are housed during the cotton season.

"There are close to 200 small cottages there," said Neill, "and we've been able to take care of all the families without splitting them up."

He said, "we're planning on having to keep them through Sunday at least. We'll stay here until every family is assisted that needs help."

He said the Raymondville Red Cross disaster operation was far bigger than anything the Red Cross has had to undertake at Corpus Christi or at any other South Texas city following heavy rains in the backwash of tropical storm Gladys.

Black thunderclouds hung over Raymondville late Friday. R. O. Adams, official weather bureau observer, said he had measured .88 inch of rain Friday. Eight inches fell on Raymondville early Thursday.

Wood expected evacuation would continue during the night.

"Some who wouldn't come in last night will be in tonight," he said.

District Attorney Samuel Dash attended the hearing as "the usual first step toward a criminal prosecution." He said it would be

New, Interesting Facts Promised In Silver Case

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9—UP—

The district attorney said Friday he will have "new and interesting" evidence to present on Monday at a preliminary hearing for Mrs. Gertrude Silver, accused as an accessory in the abortion-death of her heiress daughter.

It is part of an International Moose youth safety awards contest that will be undertaken at the more than 1,700 lodges throughout the United States, Canada and Alaska, said Stanley Brister, chairman of the civic affairs committee of the lodge.

The contest is open to boys and girls between the ages of six and 18, who are asked to submit their names and a brief resume of their safety work. A judging committee will be named in the near future.

This safety work may be some act of heroism or an outstanding performance in school safety patrols, the writing of a safety theme, the creation of a safety poster, or any other work pertaining to safety, especially the safety of children.

The local winner will receive a certificate with his name and award engraved and signed by Paul P. Schmitz, director general of the Moose and Don McNeill, radio personality.

National awards will include a trip to New York or Chicago to appear on the Don McNeill radio show and a gold wrist watch.

Entries should be sent to Wilmot DeLaney, secretary, Monroe Moose Lodge, 1527 Woodland Street, West Monroe, before October 1.

Mississippi Novelist Condemns Murderers Of Chicago Negro Boy

(EDITORS: A 15-year-old Negro boy, Emmett Till of Chicago, recently was killed in Mississippi. Police arrested two white men and charged them with the slaying. American novelist William Faulkner, now visiting Rome, considers the killing a threat to the survival of American culture. In the following dispatch, written exclusively for United Press, the Nobel Prize winning author from Mississippi condemns those responsible for the abduction and slaying Aug. 28.)

By WILLIAM FAULKNER
Written For United Press

ROME, Sept. 9—UP—When will we learn that if one county in Mississippi is to survive it will be because all Mississippi survives? That if the state of Mississippi survives, it will be because all America survives? And if America is to survive, the whole white race must survive first?

Because if we Americans are to survive, it will have to be because we choose and elect and defend to be first of all Americans to present to the world one homogeneous and unbroken front, whether if white Americans or black ones or purple or blue or green. Perhaps we will find out now whether we are to survive or not. Perhaps the purpose of this story and tragic error committed in my native Mississippi by two white adults on an afflicted Negro child is to prove to us whether or not we deserve to survive.

Not to speak of the other Aryan

Contest On Safety Is Arranged

Lie Detector Experts Trying To Expose Quacks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—UP—A group of top-flight lie detector experts opened a drive Friday to expose "quacks" in their field and establish high ethical standards for qualified examiners.

The campaign was launched at the first annual conference of the recently formed American Academy of Polygraph (lie detector) Examiners. The organization is headed by Fred E. Inbau, a Northwestern University law professor.

Inbau said one of the chief purposes of the two-day meeting was to screen qualified members and map plans for a code of ethics for lie detector experts. The academy will emphasize adequate training for polygraph examiners.

Inbau said there are about 500 examiners throughout the country but that only about 20 per cent have received proper training. He stressed the difference between being able to operate the machine and interpreting the results.

The academy hopes to set up standards under which all examiners would have a college education or its equivalent. An examiner also would have to serve an apprenticeship of at least six months under an experienced operator before going out on his own.

About 100 police departments, including those in most major cities except New York, now make use of lie detectors in questioning suspects. But results of the tests are not admissible as evidence in federal or state courts.

Gleason Reveals He Has Filed For Old Age Payments

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9—UP—James Gleason, famous on stage and screen as the little tough guy with the derby hat, Friday disclosed he had filed to receive social security old age payments.

Gleason, who is 73, said he permitted the social security office in Santa Monica, where he makes his home, to reveal he had filed for the benefits in order to publicize a new law on the payments.

The veteran actor-writer-producer said he had no plans to retire from show business even though he will be getting $103.50 a month from the government.

Gleason said he learned of his eligibility from his 74-year-old stand-in, who also is receiving the benefits under a 1954 amendment to the social security law. That provides for full retirement payments at the age of 72, regardless of the individual's earnings.

The actor reached 72 last January and will get back payments as well.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Lynn Knotts Celebrates Her 16th Birthday

Sunday afternoon August 21 will be remembered as an outstanding date for Lynn Knotts, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Knotts of Sicily Island. Arriving home from the theatre, she was surprised by a group of her friends singing "Happy Birthday."

The living and dining rooms were attractively decorated with arrangements of roses, dahlias and caladium leaves in shades of pink. The centerpiece for the lace covered table was graceful twin malene covered hearts in an unusual arrangement of pink rose buds, clematis and roses of Montana that was reflected in the mirror on which it rested. The reflector gave back the light of slender tapers in crystal candelabra. This made a lovely setting for the beautiful birthday cake decorated with roses, candles and a bell in shades of pink with "Lynn" written inside the bell.

Rushees who attended the parties were: Betsy Blackman, Sandy Dean, Sandra Jo Doernberg, Donna Guyton, Linda Hines, Betty Johnson, Suzanne Kellog, Mildred Levi, Virginia Pohlman, Patty Prophit, Glenda Rogers, Linda Rogers, Betty Slaughter, Ellen Wedemeyer, Jennie Williams, Evelyn Ammans, Ruth Ann Boggs, Sandra Burford, Patsy Cooper, Joan Dillon, Landrea Ducote, Bunny Girault, Sherry Harris, Sandra Knowles, Pat Hoffman, Linda McKenzie, Sarah Lee Peters, Judy Reagan, Linda Lou Robinson, Suzanne Smith, Clair Solomon, Dianne Stancil, Ann Trousdale, Norma Turner, Lucy Turpin, Ann Walker, Connie Wheeler and Marcia Willis. Also Frances Yeldell, Pat Graham, Linda Kay Owens.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Sam D. Skinner. Her ballerina length gown was fashioned of bridal satin and hand clippings Chantilly lace. She wore a soft crown of white satin, outlined in seed pearls from which fell her shoulder length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Allen Riley was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of blue tissue taffeta and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mrs. Julius Scott, bridesmaid, wore a similar dress of pink taffeta and carried white carnations. Each wore a ruffled bandeau of matching taffeta. Kathy McCain of Colfax was flower girl. Her frock was of pink taffeta, featuring a sweetheart neckline and full skirt.

Roy Craft of Alexandria was best man and Julius Scott, usher.

The candles were lighted by David Clark Bell on the altar in the Metho-Faraldo and Jimmy Bowen of Colfax with Rev. Clark Bell officiating. The altar banked with clematis and gladioli and white tapers in branched candelabra. Mrs. Margaret La Croix was organist and Mrs. Billy Jean King, soloist.

Later in the day Lt. and Mrs. Scott left on their wedding trip. Mrs. Scott was wearing a blue and white dress of summer silk with white accessories. The young couple are at home at 7982 Quinn Circle, Millington, Tenn., where Lt. Scott is stationed.

Why Grow Old?

This is a delightful way to greet the day—stretch in every direction.

Hey, Lazy, You Can Take These Exercises In Bed

Today I would like to give you a few exercises for improving the contour of your legs and thighs and for strengthening your abdominal muscles. Still in a lazy summer mood, I am giving you exercises which can be taken in bed.

1. For the ankles: Sit on the side of the bed and make circles with your feet. Circle in one direction for a while and then in the other.

2. For slimming the calves: Lie on the bed on your back and place your feet on top of the headboard. Pull your toes back toward your head. Relax. Pull them back again. Continue.

3. When thinking of legs we must think of thighs because these often are figure offenders. Sooner or later practically every woman notices at least a small bulge in this spot, or a tendency to bulge. Do the following exercise: Lie on your back. Grasp the edges of the bed with your hands, one hand on each side. Make large circles with your left leg. After a time make large circles with your right leg.

4. This is an exercise for correcting inner leg flabbiness. Lie on your left side on the edge of the bed. Place your right hand on the edge of the bed. Let your left leg drop down toward the floor. Lift the left leg up as far as you can. Lower leg toward the floor. Continue, lifting and lowering. Turn onto your right side and continue, lifting and lowering your right leg, with your left hand on the edge of the bed.

5. Abdominal slimming: Lie on the headboard with your hands. Slowly lift both legs upward as far as comfortable, knees stiff. Very slowly lower the legs to the bed, keeping the knees stiff.

Now you have a fine leg, thigh and abdominal contouring program. When you first awaken, stretch in every direction, pushing down with your feet and stretching up and to the sides with your arms and torso. Relax and yawn and twist and stretch. This is a delightful way to greet the day. Then do these exercises.

If you would like my routine of exercises to be taken in bed send this newspaper a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 27 "Setting Up In Bed." Address Josephine Lowman in care of

'Crippling Of National Defense' Hit By Truman

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—UP—Former President Harry S. Truman Friday accused the administration of "crippling national defense" in order to reduce spending and be able to balance the budget and cut taxes in time for the 1956 elections.

He charged in a speech to the Executives' Club of Chicago that administration cutbacks in the Army ground forces are "unjustified and most dangerous at the present time."

Mr. Truman departed from his prepared text to lash out at the Eisenhower regime, saying he has been "very much disturbed for some time by the administration's policy of crippling national defense in order to keep expenditures down."

He said he has heard reports that this is a "political - inspired plan to balance the budget and at the same time cut taxes."

Sports Nlp Oilers In Homer Battle, 3-2, In Eleventh

Roy Mantle Poke Clincher; Series Decided Tonight

Ed Dick, Roy Mantle, and Richie Windle collaborated to hand the Dorado Oilers a 3-2 setback last night at Legion Stadium in 11 innings, and send the three-all series into the seventh and deciding game here tonight.

Dick hurried all the way for the Sports, and allowed but three hits, two of which were solo homers by Hose Pagan and Jim Davenport. Richie Windle's long four-master in the ninth tied it at 2-2, and Roy Mantle's in the bottom of the eleventh won it.

All the runs in the game were accounted for by homers with the exception of one, and that came after a Connie Gravette triple. All homers were by leadoff batters and came on the first pitch.

In just five pitches in the top of the first, the Oilers scored a run and were retired in order.

Pagan, El Dorado leadoff batter, smashed Dick's first pitch over the left field fence near the foul line to give his team a 1-0 lead before the next three men went down on the next four pitches.

Twin Cities knotted it in the third when Connie Gravette led off with a booming triple to right center, and scored when Don Saatzer's roller went through Davenport's legs at third.

El Dorado got it back their next turn at bat, in the same way as their first. Leadoff batter Davenport crashed a Dick fast ball high and wide over the left field fence, and it was 2-1.

Windle took matters into his own hands to tie it at 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth. Windle, the leadoff batter, led off on the first pitch from George Bielik, who had relieved Oiler starter Pete Calder in the eighth, and sent it high and far over a double-deck sign in left center. The smash, one of the longest ever hit in Legion Stadium, traveled at least 400 feet in the air.

Tallulah Trojans
Defeated By Carr
Central, 38 To 6

By JOHN EARL TAYLOR

The Neville Tigers, much improved since their last week's performance with West Monroe, beat the Bastrop Rams 34-24 at Tiger Stadium last night in a well-earned victory as the Rams gave battle all the way.

Spurred on by the appearance of "Spec" Lewis, by halfback who was out of last week's game, the Tigers, appearing to be in top shape, racked up three touchdowns in the first half.

Late in the first quarter, after successive drives by Lewis and Billy King which were instigated by the consistent smooth-ball-handling of quarterback, Elton Upshaw, the Tigers raked up their first tally when Lewis bucked the middle from three yards out. Ragan split for the uprights for the extra point.

Trailing at half-time by a score of 20 to 6 at the half-time the Bastrop Rams, came back with rejuvenated spirits determined to stay in the ball game in spite of their earlier loss of their first string quarterback, Ralph McKinstry.
Their first efforts were in vain as Neville, in less than 2 minutes, scored another touchdown when Lewis plunged over from the two after five plays from scrimmage.

Not to be outdone, Larry Ryer, right - half for Bastrop ripped through the center of the Tiger line and went 18 yards before being smothered by a smooth operating backfield safeties.

Ryer for the next four or five plays gave the Tigers a rough time, and powered the ball to the 10 yard line where again Bob Lofton scored on a right end sweep.
Kick for extra point was no good.

Neville gathered steam after the kickoff, saw Lewis break away around left end to go on a 65 yard jaunt from his own 15 before he was pulled down on the Bastrop
20 by Bill Carter.

Led by the superb ball-handling of Upshaw, the Tigers, rolled up two more touchdowns in the second quarter.

King, on a run through the middle of the Bastrop line from the five yard line, ran the score up to 12-0 early in the second quarter.

Taking over the pigskin after a fumble by King on his own 15, the ver for eight hits and six runs before the Tiger right-hander was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Garver absorbed his fourteenth loss of the season. He has won 12.

Lights Over Broadway

Songwriter Martin Schwab relates the one about the Broadway Guy, weekend in a nearby California resort. He asked a pretty girl for a dance.

As they mambod, he squeezed her, cooing: "You're beautiful."

On the second squeeze he said: "You have a gorilla shape."

Finally, he gasped: "Look, this is my last night. I have to go back in the morning."

To which she baby-stared: "I'm dancing as fast as I can!"

That reminds us of the line about romancing: "When she starts removing her earrings you're on 2nd Base."

At the RSV last night some of the unemployed actors were having The Downs.

Nice to see so many stars in Hollywood getting divorced. For a while it looked like too many were trying suicide.

Irving Hoffman overheard it on a bus. A middle-aged wolf took the seat next to a girl and asked: "Where have you been all my life?"

Giving him plenty of the back-of-her-neck, she ice'd: "Well, for most of it I wasn't born!"

A booking agent in the Stork Club was depressed after getting a full year's bookings for a headliner in night clubs and teevee.

"How," asked a pal, "can you be glum after such a big deal?"

"Well," was the reply, "we have a little girl 7½."

Right out of all the old joke books and Reader's Digest.

Cotton

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 5 to 45 cents a bale lower today.

The selling was well absorbed, particularly in near months, by mill buying on the way down, along with some covering credited to export sales.

Active commission house demand was lacking in the face of a higher government cotton crop report.

The slow pace of cotton exports, which so far this season are estimated to be less than half those of a year ago, coupled with the expanding new cotton crop movement, tended to weigh in the futures market.

Distant May and July declined into new seasonal low ground.

Till Kidnap-Slaying Trial Slated To Open Sept. 19

SUMNER, Miss., Sept. 9 (AP) — Circuit Judge Curtis Swango today set Sept. 19 as starting date for the trial of two white men charged with murdering a 14-year-old Chicago Negro who whistled at a white woman.

a possible death sentence if convicted.

The state accused them of kidnapping Emmett Louis Till from his uncle's home, where the boy is visiting, and murdering him because the youth whistled or made some remark to Mrs. Bryant.

Young Till's mother, Mrs. Mamie Bradley of Chicago, said she will come to Mississippi to testify if she gets adequate protection, and asked for two Chicago detectives as bodyguards.

"There's no sense in being foolhardy," she said in asking for bodyguards.

Dist. Atty. Gerald Chatham said he would send her a telegram today asking her to appear. He pledged adequate protection. But it was uncertain whether Chicago detectives could be brought to Mississippi by the state.

Bryant and Milam pleaded innocent to the kidnapping and murder indictments. Officers said they admitted taking Till from his uncle's home in the nearby Money community, but released him unharmed after Mrs. Bryant said he was not the boy who gave her a "wolf whistle."

Judge Swango will draw a special jury list of 125 names next Monday. The names will come from all sections of the county, instead of the usual practice of drawing names only from the county judicial district where the trial is held.

Young Till's body was found in the Tallahatchie River three days after he was taken from his uncle's home at 2:30 a.m. A bullet hole was an inch above his right ear. A cotton gin fan weighing 100 pounds was tied to his neck with wire to weigh his body.

Despite the weight, his feet and legs rose to the surface and a teenage fisherman found his body.

India exports about $25,000,000 worth of raw skins, mostly of goats and sheep, annually.

65-Inch Rattlesnake Is Killed By Deputy

One of the largest rattlesnakes seen in these parts recently was bagged Thursday by G. B. Knowles, brother of Deputy Sheriff Raymond Knowles.

The snake, which was brought to the News - Star office building Friday, measured 65 inches, and had 14 rattles. It was not a diamond - back snake, but onlookers were unable to tell what type of rattler it was.

Knowles, who lives near Cheshire Station, said he killed the snake with a jack-handle.
